

I am overcome by the outpouring of support during this difficult time. However, spouses who lost a loved one in the attack are still enduring financial hardships. Even though many charitable organizations have provided some form of relief, the Federal government must do more. Easing their federal tax liability is a step in the right direction.

In addition, this legislation addresses some of the recovery concerns within the New York City area damaged by the terrorist attacks. The creation of the New York Liberty Zone provides numerous tax benefits for qualified property. In order to rebuild, we must also help those businesses that were impacted by the senseless acts of terrorism.

September 11th will forever be synonymous with other historical events that Americans have endured. It will serve as yet another reminder of how Americans come together during difficult times, as well as send a simple message to those who hide behind terrorism—America Will Never Fear You and We Will Always Take Care Of Our Own.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant the order of the House of today, the motion is agreed to.

TRIBUTE TO SCOTT BROSIUS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. WU) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WU. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Scott Brosius, the starting third baseman for the New York Yankees and a resident of McMinnville, Oregon. Scott announced his retirement from major league baseball on November 27.

Born and raised in Oregon, Scott played baseball at Rex Putnam High School in Milwaukee and then at Linfield College in McMinnville. In 1987, during his junior year in college, he was drafted by the Oakland Athletics.

During his 11 seasons of major league baseball, first with the A's and later with the New York Yankees, Scott was known as a solid hitter and outstanding defensive third baseman, for which he won the Gold Glove award in 1999.

His best season came in 1998. That year, he batted 300, with 98 RBIs and was named to the American League All Star team. But his career highlight came later that year. During the World Series, in a 4-game sweep of the San Diego Padres, Scott batted 471, hit two home runs, and had six RBIs. He was the clear choice for the World Series' Most Valuable Player. He accomplished all of these post-season feats while his father was undergoing cancer surgery and chemotherapy.

Scott's flare for the dramatic resurfaced during this year's seven-game World Series between the Yankees and the Arizona Diamondbacks, which many have called the most exciting World Series ever. In game five, with the Yankees trailing 2 to 0 in the ninth inning, Scott came to the plate with two outs and a runner on second base. Scott crushed a 1-0 slider from Arizona closer Byung-Hyun Kim to tie the score and send the game into extra innings. Ultimately, the Yankees went on to win the game 3 to 2 in 12 innings.

As an All Star, a Gold Glove winner, a World Series MVP, and a member of three world championship teams, Scott has a lifetime's worth of baseball memoirs. But, Mr. Speaker, I rise today not only to recognize Scott Brosius for his outstanding baseball career but also because I believe he embodies the best of Oregon, and American values.

This year, Scott finished his contract with the New York Yankees and became eligible for free agency. At 35 years of age, and as an 11-year major league veteran, he could easily fetch millions of dollars as a free agent. But Scott turned down the money and the limelight so that he could return to McMinnville to raise his three young children. He has reenrolled at Linfield College to finish his college degree and has offered to help coach the Linfield varsity baseball team.

The example set by people like Scott Brosius reminds us of what is most important in life: values, family, and community.

I wish Scott and his family well, and I thank him for being such a positive role model. Scott, you have the admiration of us all, and personally I envy you for all the time that you will have in Oregon with your family.
